Missouri Long Trek Flints are hand-knapped from white to gray “Burlington” chert that I gather myself. There is no warehouse with flints on the shelves; just a guy finding flint rocks in his spare time and breaking them up in his basement. The color, gloss, and shape of the gunflints vary a bit within a single batch and during the year as I explore new sources for raw material. I hope you will find them to be “rough, tough, and sparky” and a great value. Standard sizes are 1/8” longer than wide. Though not “flat-topped”, they will not be overly “humpy”. If I ship them, I’d use them. I do not typically have a stock in hand, so if you need flints this week, I recommend the English flints at www.stonewallcreekoutfitters.com. Good folks, good flints. I don’t have a relationship with them; I just respect their product and service.

In addition to my Missouri flints I have some original early 1800s vintage flintlock period English musket-sized flints. I sort, retouch and resize them and sell these English flints at $20 per dozen or in bulk at $150 per hundred in musket sizes only.

Spring 2012 Pricing

| Flat Rate Box of >50 shards | $25.00 shipped |
| Thin sharp “bag” shards     | $1.50 ea       |
| XL “camp” shards            | $1.00 ea       |
| Contest winner shards       | $3.00 ea       |

Shipping I charge $1.75 to ship 1 dozen flints by USPS, first class. 2 dozen will cost about $2.50 to ship and 3 dozen about $3.00, depending on size. I charge $2.00 to ship the first dozen flints if they are musket sized. Shipping to Canada by airmail takes almost 2 weeks. Shards, being heavy, cost more to ship. The Flat Rate Priority Mail Box of more than 50 assorted irregular flint shards is a great value. Share these with friends or teach scouts or other kids how to make fire with flint and steel. With the Flat Rate box of shards ($25 shipped), the customer is getting more than 50 shards for $14.65, since the shipping costs me $10.45. If you order gun flints at the same time this saves you shipping costs, because all shipping is included in the flat rate.

Availability: I can’t get ahead with my Missouri flints, so expect a 2-3 week delivery for them. I’ll give you my best estimate of delivery when we email about your needs. I can ship English flints the same week I get the order. For Missouri flints please limit your order to 1-3 dozen total, so I can serve other customers. If you do not know the size of flint you need, see some notes on the back side of this info page.

Ordering Please email me (Longtrekflints@gmail.com) with your name, address, and sizes and quantities of flints desired. Though my phone # is at the top of the page, email works better as I have a regular job to keep. When I have made your flints, I will ship them to you with an invoice. Please do not pre-pay, as I prefer to not have your money, while you don’t have the flints. When you receive your flints, if you want more, please do not include more money with the payment for your current order and ask for more flints. Just place a new and separate order as you did for the current order. Otherwise, things get confused, I lose orders, and you are inconvenienced.

Payment or Return policy: When you receive the flints and invoice, please inspect them immediately and test them for sparkiness in your unloaded gun or with your firesteel. Please do not wait to go to the range. Just dry fire an unloaded gun in a darkened room. If satisfied, please send me cash, a money order or a check as payment, made out to “Rich Pierce”. If the flints I send are not suitable, you may send them back to me at your expense. That is no problem whatsoever.
